

The Right Hydration Choice for Government

Modern government offices, local municipalities, and city, state, and federal government organizations' public and private facilities and spaces rely on Quench for our broad selection of filtered water dispensers and ice makers, sparkling water machines, and coffee brewers, top-notch drinking water purification technologies, unique expertise of local water conditions, world class service technicians, and national service coverage - while also supporting their sustainability initiatives.

As the needs for an eco-friendlier world increase, Quench makes it easy for government entities to subscribe to the Federal Green Challenge. Quench bottleless water coolers can save 7,000+ single-use plastic bottles from ending up in landfills or our oceans each year. Switching to Quench has the potential to reduce around 95% fewer tons of CO2 emissions each year, this sustainability choices bodes well for members of your community and public perception.

Government entities, large or small, have a lot going on. The last thing that needs to be worried about is how guests, visitors, and staff are being hydrated. That is why government customers trust Quench with their hydration needs. With fixed monthly billing with included preventative maintenance, there are no surprise expenses that might require fundraising. Quench also offers centralized billing, keeping track of all machine placements, no matter how many machines your government office has.
